Sanford Creek
Elementary School

July 12, 2016

This week in reading we will be working on developing classroom procedures. Students will help create expectations and begin choosing "good-fit books". Students will learn to ask questions while reading narrative texts). Please practice these skills at home when reading at night for homework. In writing we will generate ideas for true stories from their lives. In math, students will build fluency for adding and subtracting within 20, focusing on specific strategies. In social studies, we will be getting to know each other with a few ice breaker activities. We will draft a list for our class rules, where everyone has a say on what we believe will help our classroom run smoothly.

National Geographic

Please send in $5.00 for your child's National Geographic subscription as soon as possible. See attached form for more information!

Friday Journals

Each Friday, your child will write to you in his/her Home/School Journal telling you about his/her week. It will be your homework to respond to your child by writing back to him/her in the journal. It is your child's responsibility to bring the journal back to school each Monday. There are some suggested sentence starters in the front of the composition book for both you and your child.

Letterland

Letterland is very similar to what you saw in 1st grade. Homework will be as follows:

Monday- Read 2 times (parent sign word list sheet)

Tuesday-Look-say-cover-write

Wednesday-Write 6 sentences

Thursday-Written practice test

Friday-turn in all Letterland homework on Friday
